ment officials have been advised with renewed emphasis recently "to use their common sense and discretion" in talking with newsmen about sensitive security sublects. But he denied that any "written instructions" have been circulated to restrict press contact with officials.

"We are not trying to restrict access by newsmen," he said emphatically.

Reports and rumors of the investigations at the department, have spiraled behind the scenes, however, to the consternation of many ranking officials who are concerned that the inhibitions real or exaggerated, will damage morale and operations.

Mr. McCloskey declined to discuss whether lie detectors, or, polygraphs as they are technically called, were used. It was confirmed, however, that the instruments, which measure human reactions to questions, were employed in interrogations concerning disclosure of information about U.S. bargaining posttlons in the secret strategic arms limita-tion talks (SALT) with the Soviet Union, now under way in Hel-

The degree of voluntarism actually involved in such circumstances is often an open question, officials concede. Investigations of this kind often have a dual purpose to attempt to find the "leaker," and to serve warning on all others.

Mr. McCloskey said in answer to questions that "we have cooperated with agents of the Justice Department who have undertaken investigations within the department at the same time that agents also were doing the same in other agencies of the government with reference to stories in which sensitive information was disclosed on an un-

Big4 Delay Signing of Berlin Pact Work on Uniform German Version

By David Binder BERLIN, Sept. 2 (NYT).-The

Big Four ambassadors ran afoul of what Mark Twain called the "awful German language" today in their attempt to issue a uniform translation of their accord on Berlin. This delayed their signatures on the documents by at least 24 hours.

Signing of the pact had been scheduled for 1 p.m. in the neo-classical West Berlin building that housed the Allied Control Council after World War II.

Television and newsreel cameras were mounted in the firstfloor room that once served as Prussia's supreme court hall. Klieg lights blazed and a horde of journalists pressed against the gold-painted wooden barriers.

Minutes before the appointed hour a spokesman of the presiding French ambassador came out and said: "There will be nothing at 1 p.m.

The trouble arose over dif-fering German translations from the official versions in English and Russian of the accord reached by the four-power ambassadors on Aug. 23 after nearly 17 months of negotiations aimed powder keg.

Bonn Plea Accepted

The last-minute demand for a uniform text was made early yesterday morning by Egon Bahr, the state secretary in Willy Brandt's Bonn chancellery, who has played the key West German role in the parleys leading to the Berlin accord.

Mr. Bahr based his demand on tha argument that conflicting German translations of the pact in Bonn and East Berlin could cause damaging "controversy" in the Federal Republic, where the powerful conservative parliamentary opposition is poised to pounce on the least discrepancies in Mr. Brandt's policy of rap-prochement with the Soviet bloc.

The three Western Allies acceded to his demand and three West Berlin and East Berlin to draw up an agreed German translation.

Language and legal specialists of the four powers as well as the two German states spent all yesterday and most of the night trying to match the English-to-German and Russian-to-German versions of the text. Couriers rushed back and forth through the wall that has divided Berlin for the last 10 years and aides were telephoning Moscow, Washington, Paris, London, Boon and East Berlin well into the morning

Vital Aspects Involved

According to highly placed some of the most vital aspects colossally important," said one of Mr. Brandt's senior aides.

One disputed phrase was "transit traffie" in English, to describe the movement of civilian goods and persons on the land routes between West Berlin and West Germany. The East Germans wanted to eliminate the German equivalent of "traffic" so as to take advantage of the international legal usage of "transit" as a noun, rather than an adjective -meaning movement across alien territory. The Western sida won on this dispute during the day,

Russia Plays Up Assurance By Rogers on China Contacts

By Bernard Gwertzman

MOSCOW. Sept. 2 (NYT).— The Soviet Union gave promi-nence today to Segretary of State William P. Rogers's assurances that the United States does not want its contacts with China to jeopardize its continuing dialogue with Moscow.

The attention given by Soviet media to Mr. Rogers's speech on Tuesday in Houston to the American Legion convention was seen here as an indirect signal that. for the time being at least, Moscow is willing to give Washington the benefit of the doubt about the implications of its policy toward China. Both Pravda and Izvestia, the

'Arms Study in London

Soviet Said to Lead U.S. 50% In Land-Based Missile Total

By Alfred Friendly

Soviet Union has almost half again as many land-based intercontinental ballistic missiles as the United States, and is build-ing ballistic missile nuclear submarines at a rate that will wipe out the present American lead in submarine-hunched weapons -656 to 350-by 1974, an authoritative study said today.

It added that the Soviet Union has about 20 of the new Y-class nuclear submarines and is building them at the rate of seven or sight a year.

The calculations are in "The Military Balance, 1971-1972," an annual publication of the International Institute for Strategic Studies, a respected Londonbased research body. Its findings are reputed to be the most authoritative of any issued

The study reports that the United States has apparently made no effort to increase the number of its land-based missiles-1.054-but has continued

Tass also noted that Mr. Rogers had praised the recent Berlin agreement and that he had said that a European security conference, supported by Moscow, was a distinct possibility.

The fact that the Soviet media printed Mr. Rogers's remarks in a rather conciliatory way would be quickly noted by a sophisticated Soviet reader. By publishing them, the Soviet Union was undercutting arguments published in some East European countries -and reprinted here-that the Nixon trip to Peking had an anti-Soviet motivation.

In recent weeks, however, Western diplomats have noted that the Soviet media, while stepping up attacks on China, have virtually stopped castigating the United States for its contacts with

Sign of a Softer Tone

Some diplomats believe that the Eremlin has decided on a some-what softer tone toward the United States-even though harsh suti-American articles continue to abound in the press—as the result of the Berlin agreement and reported progress at the strategic arms talks in Helsinki. In a sense, the United States and the Soviet Union have been exchanging signals about the Washington-Peking contacts. The Nixon administration has stressprivate statements that these contects were not motivated by an anti-Soviet policy. In return, Pravda has printed articles stating that Mcscow wanted to improve relations with Washington but was concerned whether the United States shared this desire.

The most important article in this vein was that of Georgi A. Arbatov, the head of the Institute of the U.S.A. and a Politburo adviter on American affairs. He wrote last month that he hoped Washington would not let its fas-cination with Peking detract from its dealings with Moscow. Mr. Rogers seemed to be replying to LONDON, Sept. 2 (WP).—The to replace Minuteman-1 missiles with the Minuteman-3, each of which carries three independently targeted warheads. Some 500 them are to be deployed, under present plans, by 1975

First Sub Operational

The United States has also begun to deploy the Poseidon submarine-launched ballistic missile, each with 10 independently targeted nuclear warheads. The first submarine equipped with them became operational earlier Completion of the program to convert 31 U.S. nuclear sub-marines to the new weapons system will raise the total number of warheads deliverable by the submarine force from about 1,500 now to more than 5,400. They could attack about 5,000 targets, the study said.

Having surpassed the United States by about 50 percent in the number of intercontinental missles with 1,510, the Soviet Union seems to have slowed further deployment of them and "may have reached, or be ap-proaching, a planned level," the study reports.

But a number of underground siles of a new type has been observed, which are probably designed to add protection for existing missiles, especially for the large SS-9, with a multiple warhead cluster. The Soviet Union now has 280 operational SS-9s, the study declares.

Bomber Strength Down

In contrast to the buildup of their offensive missile forces, both Russia and the United States have continued to let their strategic bomber strength dwin-

But, the study believes, the effectiveness of the American bombers is likely to be greatly increased by the introduction of a new attack missile with an effective range of 60 to 75 miles. Each B-52 could carry 24 of them, and the proposed E-1 bomber would carry 32,

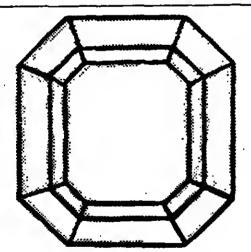

Thus, "the total number of weapons deliverable by the American strategic homber force is . . . likely to rise sharply in the next five years. The Soviet Union bas shown no ap-parent interest in matching this particular effort."

It has devoted a great deal more effort than the United States, however, to territorial air deses. It deploys some 10,000 onti-aircraft missiles and 2,000 interceptor aircraft. It seems to testing an improved antiballistic missile and may be ready to begin installing it.

Report on China

Reporting on military developments elsewhere, the study said that China is improving its military production, but of its 140 divisions only five are armored and their mobility is limited. Its navy and air force account for about 10 percent of its total armed forces of 2,880,000, as compared with 30 percent in the Soviet Union.

China appears to be building one nuclear-powered submarine and may have enough fissionable material for about 120 nuclear and atomic weapons. It has deployed about 20 operational missiles of medium range (1,000 miles) in northeastern and northwestern China, and has brought a new missile site into use in Manchuria, allowing for flights of up to 2,900 miles into the Sinking desert. This suggests the development of an intermediate-range missile.

TO THE BENEFIT OF THE NATIONAL DAY NURSERIES

For Soviet Catholics

By Don M. Larrimore ROME, Sept. 2 (WP).-There is striking optimism at the Vatican about future relations with the atheistic government of the Soviet Union, which still only barely tolerates the existence of the Roman Catholis religion of 3.5 million of its inhabitants. Pope Paul VI has now achieved a foot in the Kremlin door by working two separate avenues: the avowed Soviet desire for peace and ecumenical contact with the government-approved Russian Orthedex Church.

The Rev. Pedro Arrupe, the Jesuit superior general, has just been to Moscow at the invitation of Metropolitan Nikodim of Leningrad. On one of the metropolitan's visits to Rome, Pope Paul called him "our dear Nikodim, so patient and so good."

Father Arrape insisted that his four-day trip to Moscow. Lenin-grad and the Zegorsk Monastery was strictly religious and ecumeni-cal, with no political talks ar-

Expected Course

But there was nothing to prevent him from conveying Pope Paul's latest thinking to the Kremlin through his Orthodox hosts. And, as a noted papal troubleshooter-he visited the Rev. Daniel Berrigan, S.J., in Danbury prison this spring-Father Arrupe would also be expected to look into the plight of Roman Catholic clergy in the Soviet Union. This week, the Italian news agency, ANSA, cited "fragmentary information" reaching the Vati-can that among the priests im-prisoned in the Soviet Union are several Jesuits. Of particular concern to Pope Paul is the fact that two Roman Catholic bishops are under detention and another is in enforced "internal exile."

The bulk of the Roman Catholics live in Lithuania, where they number 25 million, or 80 percent of the population.

Two years ago, 40 priests in the Lithuanian Republic sent Premier Alexei N. Kosygin a dramatic appeal for restoration of religious liberties claiming that "the Roman Catholic Church in Lithuania is condemned to death" by forced reduction of clergy, impediments against haptism, a ban on church publications, sanctions against Catholics preparing children for first communion and terrorism against students who attend church.

No notable improvement has resulted, but the Kremlin did permit the three active hishops to visit Rome this May. In Estonia, where an estimated 480,000 Roman Catholics live, the situation is much the same. The remaining half million Soviet Catholics live mostly in areas of prewar Poland now incorporated in Belorussis, and the Ukraine.

Belorussia has 80 Roman Catholic priests but no bishop. The Ukrainian hierarchy was decimated when the Russians reoccupled the republic from the Nazis. Of the Ukraine's 11 bishops, all arrested in 1945, only two survived prison and labor camp: Josef Slipyj, now a cardinal in Rome who was released by Nikita 8. Khrushchev as a gesture to Pope John XXIII at about the time his son-in-law was received at the Vatican, and Vaxil Hopko, who was failed in Czechoslovskie until Alexander Dubcek freed him.

Limited Goals The Vatican today is seeking limited goals in its dealings with Russia. When the Vations diplomat, the Most Rev. Agostino Casaroll, went to Moscow in March, he reportedly proposed official recognition of diocesan hishops in the Soviet Union, an easing of restrictions on the training of priests and the establishment of apostolic "consulates" in Lithuania and Es-

Archbishop Casaroli received no coccrete Soviet commitments. But he takes the long view. Seven years ago, be said, he advocated contact with Communist regimes in the hope that their professional anti-religious bins would one day weaken, ond, when it did, the Holy See would have communications channels ready for use.

After his Moscow trip, the first Bolshevik revolution, Archblsbop Casaroli said: "The very fact that after 50 years we have been able to pass from monologue to colwhich the colloquy unfolded gives hope, unless I am mistaken, that it will be possible to carry on a vacation in Benidorm on Aug. 22. fruitful dialogue."

Cahill of IRA Is Held by U.S. My Lai Issue At Start of Fund-Raising Tour Is Refused by Circuit Court

ATLANTA, Sept. 2 (AP).—The Pifth Circuit Court of Appeals declined yesterday to convene a three-judge panel to rule on whether a civilian witness in Capt, Ernest Medina's courtmartial may be prosecuted for criminal contempt

Frederick Widmer of Lower Burrell, Pa., a former member of Capt. Medina's infantry company at My Lai, was cited by a military judge last week for contempt after twice refusing the jndge's orders to testify under a federal grant of immunity. Capt. Medina is being tried on charges of assaulting one civilian and pre-meditated murder of 102 others at My Lai, South Vietnam, in March, 1968

The appeals court, saying it did not have purvlew over the case under federal statutes, directed that the case be handled by U.S. District Court Judge Charles A. Moye jr., who had requested the pree-judge panel on Monday. Case in Recess

Capt. Medina's court-martial. which began Aug. 16 at Fort Mc-Pherson, near Atlanta, was recessed until Wednesday after Mr. Widmer's refusal to testify. The appeals court's refusal may speed a decision on Mr. Widmer and allow the trial to resume on schedule. "At the moment, we have a court date of Sept. 8." said Capt. Frank Wurtzel, assistant prosecutor. The Army, which boped to use

Mr. Widmer as its 30th witness, says his testimony would prove that Capt. Medina, 35, of Montrose, Colo., was fully aware that civilians were being murdered while he coordinated the operation from a command post outside Mr. Widmer invoked his Fifth Amendment rights against self-incrimination after his lawyer told Col Kenneth Howard that the grant of immunity did not fully protect the witness from prosect tion. One witness in the Medina trial identified Mr. Widmer as the person who shot a small boy at My Lai.

After releasing Mr. Widmer in the custody of his military lawyer, Col. Howard sent the case to the U.S. district attorney in Atlanta for prosecution. A military judge may not fine or sentence a civilian.

Permanent Injonction Sought Mr. Widmer's lawyers then fil-

Gen. Simler's new program is the result of a report to him by a 15-man human-relations team of officers and enlisted men he sent to 15 bases under his consmand. The team, which reported on July 26, said that everyone in the command should understand that "there is discrimination and racism in the command and it is

Reports Confirmed

The general said the report had confirmed similar reports from other Air Force commands and other military services. But, he said, "the real value of the report lies in knowing what the people feel," whether their complaints are valid or not.

He said he was surprised by some of the things the report had brought to the surface, particularly the lack of leadership at the middle levels of his command. The Air Training Command includes basic, technical and flight training in the Alr

Gen. Simler said he would insist that his subordinate commanders understand the depth and scope of the problem, that "leaders, regardless of level, have the courage to face facts," and that inequities be corrected.

He added that he had emphasized to his chief subordinates that discrimination in promotions, duty assignments, enforcement of regulations and punishment be eliminated.

Subjective Importance He said he thought some of the inequities were not so serious as the report said. But that was not so important, he asserted, as the fact that blacks felt that they were getting unfair treatment. On the issue of inflammatory racial shirs, Gen. Simler said: T've got an aggressive chief of chaplains and I've told him to get the chaplains out of church and onto the flight line. The men tend to cut out that language when the chaplain is around.

The general said that he was insisting that the security police on the bases take care of law enforcement and get out of the commanders and noncommissioned officers' area of responsibility for solving racial questions. He also said he had ordered an increase in the training and numbers of security police to improve their capabilities.

More Basic Instruction The general said that the number of hours of instruction in human relations at Lackland Air Force Base, where all Air Porce men receive their basic bon Monoxide training, was increased last month from three or four to nine hours during the six-week training period.

The human relations team's report was highly critical of discrimination in civilian communities near air bases, noting that housing, restaurants. theatres and bars were not open to all equally. The report recommended that air bases be closed if civilians did not treat all airmen without discrimination.

Gen. Simler said, however, he doubted that a situation would ever develop where that would be considered.

Nader Issues List Of Auto Defects Found by Agency

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2 (AP). -Ralph Nader made public yes-terday a list of automobile brake failures, window explosions, engine dislocations and fires.

Mr. Nader's list covering scores of domestic and imported models produced since 1967 was taken mostly from government files of investigations closed or shelved because officials did not consider the defects to be safety-related or widespread.

The list was contained in a letter to Douglas Toms, director of the U.S. National Highway Traffic Safety Administration. The number of cars potentially affected by the specific design defects listed in this letter is well into the millions,"

Mr. Nader said. "For example, there are perhaps four million Chevrolets on the road today with potentially dangerous motor mounts. And at least as many General Motors cars are equipped with powerassisted brakes that may fail without notice."

Mr. Sears then talked to the jurors for 90 minutes to persuade them to return the indictments, the juror said.

Mr. Hanrahan and the 13 other defendants, including policemen, have refused to plead to the indictments, contending that they are invalid because, the defendants dants say, Mr. Sears exerted undue influence on the grand jury. West German Air Force to Get No Phantom Jets Before 1974

By Michael Getler

The Pentagon said today that the West German Air Force will not begin receiving the first of its newly ordered F-4 Phantom fighter-bombers until early in 1974, and that delivery of all 175 planes will take several more years to complete.

Despite the long delay, the Defense Department maintains that the sale will have a beneficial impact on the U.S. balance of payments situation well before Pentagon spokesman Brig.

Gen. Daniel James explained that advance payments from the Germans would begin "in the not too distant future." but he could not say precisely when that would be. The Germans, however, already have cash on deposit in this country, which informed sources say could be applied to the purchase price estimated yesterday by Defense Secretary Melvin R.

James said it was still undecided which engine would be used in the plane, but he indicated that it would probably not be a British-produced engine such as the one used in the versions of the Phantom now in use by the Royal Navy and Air Force. The Pentagon spokesman said the new F-4F model to be sold to the Germans, "is going to be es-sentially an American aircraft."

applied to the so-called offset agreement between the two countries, under which the Germans buy U.S. military equipment.

Proves Moon Has Heat

Concentrated Deep Below the Surface

By Thomas O'Toole WASHINGTON, Sept. 2 (WP).

-The moon is definitely a hot celestial body, with its heat concentrated deep in its interior like the earth or in pockets of radioactive minerals 100 miles below the surface.

The evidence for this conclusion comes from the two heat probes drilled almost six feet into the lunar surface last month by Apollo-15 astronaut David R.

Thermometers placed along the two probes showed that the temperature increased one degree Fahrenheit each foot deeper into the moon, which means that the flow of beat from the moon's interior is only one-fifth of what the heat flow is from the earth's "This tells us that the abundance of radioactive minerals inside the moon is at least comparable to the abundance inside the earth," said Columbia University's Dr. Marcus Langseth at a press conference at Houston's Manned Spacecraft Center. "If these radioactive minerals are uniformly distributed throughout the moon, you should get melting temperatures at depths greater than 300 miles." Question of Life

It also suggests that the moon and the earth were formed at elements, but it sheds no light on the question of why the moon is lifeless and the earth is teem-

"It could be that the earth was hot and the moon was cold when they were formed," one scientists said, "and it may be that the earth is cooling down while the moon is heating up. Most scientists believe that the moon was hot at the time of its formation, and that the heat flowing from its interior today is left over from the cataclysmic events of its first billion years. One question left unanswered by the two heat probes on the moon is the depth of the heat source. If the heat is flowing upward from molten rock, said Dr. Langseth, then the source of the heat is spread throughout the moon at a depth of about 300 The heat could be coming from rock that is not hot enough to be molten. If this is the case,

Mr. Langseth said, then this radioactive rock might be found only in pockets about 100 miles below the surface.

The Orbiting Astronomical Obyesterday, has discovered what scientists suspect is one of the mysterious "black holes" in the sky, a remnant of a star that has shrunk to such density that no light can leave it.

عد استلاما

The American spacecraft's ultraviolet telescopes have also supplied evidence of interstellar soot, observations of the apparent shells of dying sters and signs of giant hydrogen clouds surrounding comets.

Results from Orbiting Astronomical Observatory-2, or OAO-2, were reported last week during a two-day symposium at the University of Massachusetts, in Amherst. The meeting was held in conjunction with a conference of the American Astronomical So-

Loug Operating

The observatory was launched Dec. 7, 1968, and carries 11 telescopes that were designed to operate only for a few months. But the satellite is now expected to return data until well past the third anniversary of its launching.

From 500 miles above the earth, OAO-2 continuously observed a supposedly twin star system. Beta Lyrae. One star is clearly visible. It has long been assumed that something, possibly another star, was locked in an orbit with the visible star.

The two bodies, one visible and one invisible, would seem to be linked like dumbbels. The invisible object had a mass comparable to the visible star, which led to speculation that it might be a "black hole."

Scientists at Lehigh University, the University of Wisconsin and Goddard Space Flight Center reported at the Massachusetts sym-posium that the black hole bypothesis would explain the gravitational force and mass of the invisible twin star.

While the existence of black holes has never been confirmed, many scientists have long been convinced that such phenomena black hole, hypothetically, would be the result of a collapsing process in which the material remaining from a burned-out star is drawn in upon itself by its own gravity. Finally, the object becomes so dense and the gravity so strong that neither light nor material can escape.

A black hole would represent the most advanced stage in a star's collapse, far beyond the white dwarf or even the theoret-

Col. Herbert said yesterday that he had been transferred from his position as Third Army recruiting officer to a position in industrial operations at Third Army headquarters here. He said he will work with such things as supply materials, transportation and housing. "It's a civilian job," Col. Herbert said,

"They said the transfer had nothing to do with my efficiency," Col. Herbert said. "They said it is hard to enlist people with my viewpoint." Earlier this week, the Continental Army Command gave the Third Army its annual award for getting the most re-enlist-

Mr. Romanoff made various assaults on the foibles-and, often, the pocketbooks-of the Hollyhierarchy between 1927 and 1931, when newspapers took obvious delight in unmasking the dapper little man.

But, in between, Mr. Romanoff's life was a continual swirl of cocktail parties, movie premieres and overnight stays in local fails. At various times, Mr. Romanoff successfully passed himself off not only as a Russian prince, but also once as a Russian grand duke of the same name and once as the nationally known artist and illustrator Rockwell Kent,

Uganda Accuses Tanzania Of Stepping Up Aggression

KAMPALA, Sept. 2 (Reuters):---President Idi Amin today accused Tanzania of escalating aggression against Uganda by sending aircraft to bomb the Ugandan village of Kikagati, 230 miles southwest of here on the Uganda-Tanzania border.

Sources here said the raid apparently took place yesterday. Kitagati is one of the two main crossing points on the border, which Gen. Amin closed eight weeks ago on security grounds. A spokesman for the president's office said Gen. Amin announced the bombing raid at a meeting with a representative of the International Committee of the Red Cross, Roger Santschy, at army headquarters here.

He told Mr Santschy that Tanzania has stepped up its aggression against Uganda and Tanzanian planes have bombed houses at Kikagati," the spokes-

The general's accusations came after a week of border clashes between the two countries.

Heavy Artiflery

"Tanzania also used heavy artillery fire against peaceful citizens of Uganda," the spokesman quoted him as saying. He gave no details of casualties, or of the extent of the damage caused by the raid.

Gen. Amin said he was "not afraid of war," but because of his desire for friendship with all of Uganda's neighbors, he had so far adopted "a soft approach" to the border situation.

Last night it was announced here that the president had agreed to send a delegation to BRINDISI, Italy, Sept. 2 (Reuters).—Brindisi's deputy public prosecutor, Aldo Perrone, said today he had discovered "elements of great importance" concerning responsibility for the fire that swept through the Greek car ferry Heleanna last Saturday, claiming 24 lives.

But he left rescued passengers still wondering when they would be able to reclaim possessions abandoned on the ship and spared.

Port, authorities said that, of 105 cars in the hold 15 were totally destroyed, 20 suffered superficial damage, and the remainder were unharmed.

But Mr. Perrone said that bediscoveries made during yesterday's first examination of the ship, "I shall not permit anyone to go aboard for a long time." Meanwhile the ship's captain. Demetrios Antipas, remained in prison here charged with multiple manslaughter by overloading the ship and putting to sea with inadequate safety equipment, and failing to help the passengers during the emergency.

Egyptian Interior Minister Mandouh Salem announced that Egypt will henceforth be known as the Egyptian Arab Republic. Together, the three countries ac-count for more than 42 million persons against a total Arab world population of 100 million. The various Arab radios, monitored in Beirut, said that the total eligible to vote in Egypt was 8,200,759, of whom 7,767,837 voted. In Syria 2,210,405 were eligible to vote and 1,818,205 did so.

The Libyan figures were 518,803 eligible, 477,490 voters.

The total vote was 10.063,532. Announcing the Egyptian vote on Cairo radio, Interior Minister Salem sald: "The people have said yes to the decisive battle. They bave said yes to the acceptance of great responsibilities... to Arab unity... to a state hulit on science and falth."

Base for Struggle

In Syria, Mr. Zaza said the affirmative vote provided a strong base for the Arab struggle, unity and "the decisive answer to aggression and aggressor."

Political sources said the military effects of the federation would be minimal, at least immediately. It was possible that additional Egyptian warplanes could be stationed in Syria which would put them within striking distance of Tel Avlv.

But the Arab thinking at present is directed more toward the United Nations meetings later this month than toward any prospect of new warfare, despite hard-line statements from Egyptian President Anwar Sadat.

As to the prospects for the federation, the sources said it would last as long as all three leaders wanted it to last. A single defection could ruin it.

Israelis, Guerrillas Clash in South Lebanon

estinian guerrillas said today they fought Israeli Army troops more than five hours in south Lebanon with machine guns and hand grenades

A Lebanese military spokesman said the Israelis opened artillery fire twice today on the Lebanese border villages of Kfar Hamam and Rachaya el-Foukhar.

He said the first incident at 10 a.m., lasted for 15 minutes while the second, at 1:30 p.m., lasted for five hours.

The spokesman said in both incidents, the Lebanese artillery returned fire.

A spokesman for el-Fatah, the biggest guerrilla group, said Israelis laid down an artallery barrage at 9 o.m. and moved troops into the area who fought with Palestinian guerrillas.

At 1 p.m., the Israelis stepped up the attack and called in still going on at 2.45 p.m. and had extended to Rouissat, the spokesman said.

Saiga Stronghold He described the area as a stronghold for the Syrian-backed Saige guerrilla group. Also under attack were the heights surrounding Kfar Hamam and Rachaya el-Foukhar, the spokesman said

In Tel Aviv, meanwhile, the military command said Israeli troops and Arab guerrillas fought a small arms and mortar duel at the footbills of Mount Hermon

An announcement said six Arab guerrillas were "hit" in the battle north of Jebel Ross, in Lebanon. No Israeli casualties were reported.

According to the Israelis, the exchange of fire raged along the Lebanese frontier "in the mornfollowing Israeli shelling of guer-rilles in Southern Lebanon.

'Region Is Quiet' "At the time of this announcement (5:50 p.m.) the terrorists appear to have withdrawn and the region is quiet," the announcement said.

Jebel Ross overlooks southern Lebanon which the Israelis call Fatahland because it had served as a major staging area for guerrilla forces belonging to el-Patah. Israeli troops recently have made frequent sorties into southern Lebanon in search of Arab guerrillas.

Israel Gives UN An Appeal From 531 Soviet Jews

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Sept. 2 (AP).—Israel has given UN Secretary-General U Thant an appeal by 531 Jews wanting to leave the Soviet Union for Israel.

A letter signed by them asked Mr. Thant to put the question of Soviet Jews on the agenda of the General Assembly, "Help us," they wrote. "We have no other way in our life: Israel or death."

Israeli Ambassador Yosef Tekoah told a news conference yesterday that be had submitted the letter to Mr. Thant "in the hope that the Soviet government will heed the plea."

Mr. Tekoab said all the signatories were from the Soviet state of Georgia and that they comprised the largest group ever to appeal to Mr. Thant on the issue.

It's an easy trip to make. Whether you're in Europe for business or pleasure, family or friends in America are closer than you think.

And the cost is low...by telephone. For example, 474 pesetas for a three-minute, paid, station-to-station call from Spain. The same call from Italy is only 4,954 lire. From France, 36.90 francs. These rates are approximately $6.75 in U.S. money. Check the local operator for availability of lower night and Sunday rates and rates for other types of calls.

Calling the U.S.A. is the next best thing to being there... and it's the cheapest way to get there.

'In the Same Ship'

with James Reston of The New York Times, Japanese Premier Eisaku Sato, commenting on American economic policy, said: "We are in the same ship, so we must make every effort not to sink together."

The truth of this statement, so far as the United States is concerned, has been much discussed since President Nixon's proposed visit to China and his announcement of the new economic policy seemed to open a breach between Washington and Tokyo. If that breach were to be made real, and permanent, there would be little hope for the organization of a peaceful international community in the Far East; the competing interests of mainland China, the Soviet Union and Japan would dominate the whole area west of Guam.

But for Japan, too, this would be a major tragedy. As Mr. Sato made clear, the remilitarization of Japan would be politically almost impossible, and Japan's security is "based on the U.S.-Japan security treaty." Having as yet concluded no peace treaty with the Soviet Union and viewed with deep suspicion by Peking, Japan, isolated from the United States and with no European presence of any importance in the Far East, would be in a very unenviable position.

So Mr. Sato's reference to the same ship was substantially accurate. Where, then, are the leaks which might cause the two nations to sink together? It is fairly clear that the new American China policy is not one

In the course of a wide-ranging discussion of them, since it is one of those factors described by Mr. Sato as leading to a relaxation of tensions and a better hope for peace. It might even open Chinese markets to Japan, and thus mitigate one of the genuine points of friction between that country and the United States.

For the economic problem is the principal one that Mr. Sato and Mr. Nixon must work out. Japan needs an enormous external market to sustain it, and the United States has provided the largest segment of that market. But this has been at the expense of dislocation and loss within the American economy-causing Mr. Nixon to make his rough-and-ready attack upon the yen. Japanese leaders have shown understanding of the motives behind the President's move. bot just how, and to what extent, it will affect the Japanese economy, and ultimately its political structure, remains to be seen.

The dilemma is not easy for either side. The official Japanese reaction has been good, and deserves to be reciprocated. Matters of protocol-Mr. Nixon's intended meeting with the emperor, for example-can be important. But above all, it will be necessary to achieve a multilateral agreement of all the trading nations on the status of the dollar, and a bilateral agreement between the United States and Japan upon import-export relationships. Given that, there is no reason to believe the ship will sink, and every reason to hope that the many essential interests the United States and Japan have in common will continue to prevail.

Should Profits Be Controlled?

Among the complaints lodged by the labor movement against the President's wageprice freeze the most plausible—at least enperficially—is this: The freeze is unfair to workers because it prevents wage increases without preventing profit increases. This allegation sounds serious, and it deserves a more candid answer from the administration than simply pointing oot that the law under which the President acted did not empower him to control profits. Moreover, and much more important, earnest thought should be given to the feasibility of holding down excessive increases in profits—as well as in wages and prices-after the freeze is

We believe that labor's complaint has little validity for the 90-day freeze period itself. In the first place, it should be clearly undestood that the President has not frozen mages; he has frozen mage rates. Employees who work more hours or move into better jobs will earn more income. The only increases in wage income that are prohibited are those that would enable people to earn more by working the same number of hours at the same job. Similarly, it is rent, not rental income, that is frozen. A landlord who manages to find tenants for previously vacant apartments will make more money. To keep everything fair, a manufacturer who sells more goods at the same profit per unit should also be allowed to keep the increased profit income. The freeze will prevent him from increasing his profit by raising his prices. So, as we see it, equity problems arise only if he increases profits by increasing productivity.

Labor could certainly argue that the fruits of productivity increases made during the Treeze should either be shared by labor and capital or passed on to the consumer in lower prices (which would mean that wages would hoy more). This point has logical cogency, but very little practical significance in a period as short as 90 days. Productivity rises slowly-distressingly slowly in the current U.S. economy. The staggering complexities of working out a fair method of sharing the productivity increases that might occor during the freeze would not be worth the effort. Moreover, profits are currently at a historically low level. In the first quarter of 1971, total profits were less than 8 percent of Gross National Product, down from a 1965 high of over 13 percent, and from an average of more than 10 percent over the decade of the 1960s. Some rise to a more normal level during the freeze period might well be considered equitable as well as useful in stimulating a higher level of investment and employment,

If the freeze is followed, as we believe it should be, by a more permanent mechanism for mitigating inflation, the question of how to control profits will become crucial. It would be obviously unfair to labor, for example, to set up a wage-price review board with general instructions to see that prices and wages rise at the same average percentage rate. Under these circumstances all the benefits of increases in productivity would go to capital and none to labor. The real value of wages would not rise. If labor is to share the benefits of increased productivity, wages must be allowed to rise faster than orices.

Setting some general rules under which wages rise faster than prices seems to us a more feasible way of controlling profits than the frequently suggested excess profits tax. The trouble with an excess profits tax is that it is so hard to define "excess." In theory, companies could pay higher taxes on profits which exceeded those earned in some base period which presumably constituted normality. In practice, as previous experience with excess-profits taxation demonstrates, almost every company will have a reason why its profits were uncommonly low during the base period and will be happy to explain these reasons at tedious length in administrative hearings and litigation.

We share labor's concern that eapital ought not to get more than its fair share under whatever wage and price controls are enacted after the freeze. But we hope that some ingenoity will be applied to finding a way of accomplishing this objective without plunging into the swamp of administering an excess-profits tax.

Thieu's Victory

Saigon's political uncertainties are neither aggravated nor alleviated by the results of the assembly elections. President Thieu, despite the concerted attack on him by Vice-President Ky, Gen. Minh and various more dubious fringe elements, won an impressive victory. It is probably a good thing that President Thieu did not sweep the board to the extent of getting an overall two-thirds majority. Had he done so he might have been tempted into dangerously high-handed methode. He is already drifting, propelling himself or being propelled toward something embarrassingly close to dictatorship by the prospects of putting up a solo performance in next month's presidential elections. The blame for this is far from being entirely his. "Big" Minh withdrew ten days ago for no real reason other than to leave President Thieu as the only runner. Thereupon the Supreme Court obligingly withdrew electoral regulations which seemed to have had the express intention of disqualifying Marshal Ky. The marshal, with no desire at all to get the president off the hook, is refusing to stand unless the elections are reorganized and postponed for three months.

This situation must be galling for President Nixon just when the light at the end of the Vietnam tunnel is becoming clearly visible. He is doing his best to persuade President Thieu and the other leading Saigoo politicians to rise to the occasion, but so far without success. Yet it would be unfair and dangerous to argue that such difficulties negate the great advances that have been

The Crisis Nobody Needs

By C. L. Sulzberger

TSTANEUL.—The one crisis nobody wants to bear about is Cyprus and yet this familiar little olcano seems to be getting ready to explode again. The world already has its hands full with monetary troubles, Middle East troubles, Sino-Russian troubles, North Irish troubles, winding down the Vietnam war and winding up the economy. It detests the thought of another headache in Cyprus.

This even goes for Greece and Turkey, the main interested par-ties outside the little island that boasts of having sired Aphrodite, With a government of inactive military men directly running Greece and a government of active military men indirectly running Turkey, both lands covet a respite from crisis and a return to normal life. But they are unlikely to get it.

In both Athens and Ankara, which rarely agree with each other, there is considerable accord on the origins of the present difficulty—but not on what to do about it. Archbishop Makarlos clearly got an advance tip that the Greek and Turkish foreign ministers were about to meet last spring so he flew off to Moscow evidently fearing a deal that might reduce his leverage.

Makarios Returns

In any case, Makarios came back determined to block any joint action by Greece and Turkey that might end the deadlock in talks between representatives of the Greek-Cypriot and Turkish-Cypriot communities, talks that have been going on more than

When Greek Prime Minister Papadopoulos sent Makarios letters demanding that he ease the growing tension, someone in the archbishop's office leaked them to the press in an effort to undermine Papadopoulos at home. The prime minister is far from being wildly popular but this play failed; most Greeks support their prime minister's effort to avoid another Cyprus showdown.

As soon as the new Turkish regime took over power and proclaimed martial law, the Greeks sought to improve relations. Both countries are in NATO and provide the main forces for that elliance's Southeast Command, holding the hinge between the Black Sea Straits and the Middle and at least partial federation might pave the way for a Cyprus solution. Erim thinks the initial step must be federation on Cyprus, It is the old question of whether the chicken or the egg comes first. Greek tradition claims Cyprus as part of Greece's heritage. This was bypassed in agreements that transferred it from British sovereignty to an independent republic. But Makarlos refrigerated the constitution three years after it was promulgated.

For a time Greece attempted high-handed methods and illegally dispatched a military force of 10,000 to Cyprus. In 1964 the Turks were so enraged that they genuinely wanted war with Athens and were only put off-and in-furlated-when President Johnson warned them against this in a

But Makarios is unyielding visa-vis the Turks and finds Moscow useful to stoke the flames when Athens wants to douse them. An anarchic Cyprus is, of course, a fine way of splitting NATO Greece and Turkey and as a Turkish proverb says: "An open door invites callers."

In their hearts most Greeks want all Cyprus and most Turks want at least partition. But reasonable leadership on both sides sees the desire for compromise. Makarios has again demonstrated that he is clever enough

Why Europe Was Stunned

By Ralf Dahrendorf

BRUSSELS.Few expressions have been used more widely to describe the effects of Presideut Nixon's new economic policy than that America's partners are "shocked" and "stunned."

There are several reasons for this: the swiftness of the measures, the absence of consultation, the immediate effects of some decisions taken.

In addition, there are the institutional difficulties which some of America's partners have in articulating a concerted reaction. New implications of President Nixon's decisions are discovered almost every day. Many of us are beginning to see now, after the debates in the European Council of Ministers on monetary matters and in GATT abou trade, that whatever the new economic policy means to the United States, it is likely to change the entire texture of international economic relations.

One point should be made to avoid misunderstandings. Many, certainly in Europe, realize the seriousness of the economic problems with which the United States is confronted. We know that the health and stability of the United States are a necessary condition of progress in the free world.

Thus, there is much comprehension for a policy involving drastic and even painful measures. The simultaneous announcement of new tariff and nontariff barriers which might add up to discriminatory import charges of 25 percent or more is unprece-dented in the recent history of world trade. Moreover, these are deliberate and direct actions. It is still not possible to assess their effect in precise quantitative terms. However, it is estimated that very nearly 90 percent of the exports of the European communities to the United States, which amount to approximately $7 billion, will be affected,

The immediate effect is only one side of the picture. There can be little doubt that we are going to see considerable dislocation of trade. This will be partly a response to actual difficulties on the American market, but over the future of the American

Certainly, the suggestion by the director general of GATT is well taken that we have to reconsider the entire system of world trade. But this is more easily said than done. There may well be a certain parallelism with the international monetary system here, the reform of which has been demanded by many in the last 10 days.

The reasons for this, at least in the field of trade, are twofold. Pirst, while America's partners may be stunned, they are also hurt by the measures. Immediate problems must be solved. The the rules of locations caused by uncertainty maintained and developed in the light of both the old principles and the new facts of life. He Has Doubts I am not at all sure that we are prepared for this, either politically or even intellectually.

One point remains. In the past, the European community has often been charged by the United States with creating a regional bloc, internally coherent, but closed to the outside. Such charges were always exegrerated and even wrong. Yet, an element of truth is undenlable in the thesis that Europe signifies the emergence of new regional formations. Now the United States has made sweeping decisions which presumably satisfy its legitimate self-interest. But these decisions respond to American self-interest without evident regard to the interest of others who are and will continue to be closely allied with the United States. In this sense, the measures are in effect an additional challenge to regionalization. Whatever the significance may be, it must not take us to the end of liberal economic relations in the world. We all know that it is easier to be liberal while one is moving ahead but it is necessary to be liberal at all

Miss Davis's political opinions, which she states emphatically during the 55-minute film, are highly controversial. She is an avowed Communist. But the appeal does not lie there. Rather, taking a specific case, the film argues convincingly for freedom of speech and freedom of thought. It is opposed, as are all reasonable people, to the jailing of ideas.

Ingmar Bergman

Ingmar Bergman's "The Touch," in color and in English, another of today's many entries, is a studied recounting of the familiar This time it consists of a dissatisfied housewife, he doctor husband preoccupied by spital duties in a small Swedish town, and a dark stran-ger, a visiting American archaeologist (Elliott Gould), Bergman seeks to embroider this banel situation with psychological nuances, but it is shallow stuff, excruciatingly slow in development. There is an entrancing performance by Bibi Andersson as the wife; Max von Sydow, as the husband trying to rationalize his betrayal, is impressive. The miscast Elliott Gould struggles with his role. Instead of such a woman's magazine plot, Mr. Bergman would have done better to take Strindberg's "Creditora"

The Canadian entry, "Fortune and Men's Eyes," was adapted for the screen by John Herbert from his memorable play investigating the cruel, closed world of prison. youngster arrested on a minoroffense (smoking marijuana) is sentenced to six months in a

Claude Lelouch's latest, "Smic, Smac, Smoc," is somewhat rem-imiscent of René Clair's "Under the Roofs of Paris," which it imitates by accordion music, by a sense of bonhomie among the lowly and by playful technique. The West and the 'Other' Kinds of Medicines

By Alton Blakeslee NEW YORK (AP).-For any one of a raft of human illnesses, there are at least four different cures: • In China, cure can come from sticking thin needles into nerve points under the skin, in the art of acupuncture. . In Africa, cure can come from witch doctors using magical of powdered horn of rhinoceros • In India, cure can come from herbs known for thousands of years to doctors of Ayurvedic words and perhaps a sprinkling

• In Europe and the United States cure can come from a doctor's sympathetic conversation, and some innocuous sugar

They all work because the patient wants to get well, and has faith that his doctor is helping him. They work because so many human ailments are purely or mainly psychological, stemming from bent or fractured emotions, or personal problems. In fact, it is estimated that one-third of the Americans going to family doctors do not have any physical basis for their illness, and in another third their symptoms cannot be explained by, or else are out of proportion to, any physical findings.

People around the world are subject to similar complaints stemming partly or solely from psychic tensions — nervousness, psychic severe itching, some headaches, a, some irregular or fast heartbeats, some muscle cramps, faintness, high blood pressure at red vision, insomnia, weakness... the list goes on.

The needle doctor, the witch doctor, the herb doctor deal with such complaints much as does the doctor in the great medical center or in a small town-with reassurance and instillation of some faith.

Fatth Healing

But in a putdown of "other medicines," many Western doc-tors say that faith healing accounts for all the good results claimed by needle, witchcraft and herb practitioners. The human body, they point out, has remarkable powers of self-healing against infection and injury, even if no physical treatment is given -a phenomenon that often assiste Western doctors as well.

But other physicians disagree that nothing more than faith healing is always involved, and are suggesting closer, more objective looks at acupuncture, yoga meditation and herb and folk medicine around the world.

In India medicinal use of plants is mentioned in the Riga Veda, written between 4500 and 160L B.C. which some historians call perhaps the oldest repository of human knowledge.

The Ayurvedic system of medicine came later; it depends upon plants and herbs, Indian literature lists more than 1,500 plants presumed to have some medicinal value in seeking a balance between three "humors" of the body to maintain health.

Avurvedic physicians offer 2 14-day "rejuvenation course," a shortened version of a 42-day treatment using massage, exercise, medication, a salt-free diet and other means aimed at curing chronic diseases. Proponents say tha: cheap medicines and treatmants offered by the Ayurvedic and two other systems of medicine in India-the Unani and the Siddhs—can cure chronic diseases, including cases of paralysis, on which Western doctors hay - given up.

Re-examination

While such claims are disputed in the United States, there is no question that some medicines derived from herbs and plants used by the Indian practitioners and in folklore medicine have clinical effect. From plants came digitalis to sid a weakened heart. quinine for malarial fever, citrus juices to combat scurvy, and ephedrine to relieve asthmatic attack, From India came rauwolfia, leading to a potent tranquilizer and a drug to control high blood pressure.

Folk medicines are now being re-examined or explored in small but growing research programs. Scientists based in Hawaii are studying folk medicines of the Pacific Ocean peoples. Thus far they have turned up remedies that show promise of acting against cancer, of killing pain or tranquilizing patients, 25 well as agents capable of inducing abortion. Natives knew about such properties. A Swedish group is South American Indians.

Other researchers are taking a new look at yoga, particularly cendental meditation, finding the the meditativa stata produces a number of measurable physiological changes, such as reduced oxygen consumption and slowed heartbeat, and changes in brain waves.

Some young people credit it with helping them give up drugs -marijuana, LSD, even heroinbecause the feelings induced by drugs cannot compare with the mental experience from meditation.

Transcendental meditation is credited with relieving mental and physical tension is being studied as a means of controlling blood pressure, and may have other uses in clinical medicine, say some researchers. It induces a mental state quite distinct from wakefulness, sleep, dreaming, or the states produced by hypnosis and autosuggestion, one careful study concludes.

Acapuncture

Quite startling and baffling are the descriptions of surgery performed in China with acupuncture as the only anesthetic. Patients have had brain surger while talking calmly with the surgeons, eating orange slices, apparently feeling no pain, while clasping in their hands the little red book of Chairman Mao's thoughts.

Their only treatment, said Chinese surgeons, was to have a few three-inch-long needles inserted into the webbing between thumb and forefinger.

Does acupuncture involve some kind of hypnosis or suggestion that there will be no pain, some ultraconfidence instilled in the patient, or is it "rubbish," as some Western doctors maintain? Or is there some physiological phenomenon that calls for understanding possibly further develop-

Chinese doctors say they do not know how acupuncture achieves what it does, but they say it works, that for thousands of years it has beloed patients with beadaches, liver problems, fevers, pain, rheumatism, polio, asthma, kidney infections, tuberculosis and other diseases.

It is a mystery well worth investigating, say some U.S. doc-Old perhaps as the first tribal groupings is the witch doctor, many of them, as in Africa, working on the belief that illness is caused by evil spirits, which must son says. Witch doctors in Africa and their counterparts in Hawaii, Eaiti and elsewhere use the native belief in maric and spirits and suggestibility to cast spells. sometimes frightening people to death. Those marked with a death spell have actually died within Western doctors speculate that the cause may be shock produced by sudden release of adrenalin or that the adrenal glands stop functioning, so the heart stops Says Dr. Thompson: "After considering all factors, let us not have undue contempt for the witch doctor nor disregard him completely. He knows each and every member of his tribe, and is an expert psychologist. He inspires implicit faith in his people. shares their culture, and serves them to the best of his ability and we, too, are taking some of his medicines."

British Bank Rate Slashed To 5 Percent

(End of month)

LONDON, Sept, 2 (IHT),-The government today slashed its 8 percent bank rate by 1 percentage point and shortly afterwards disclosed that its reserves had soared to a record.

Both announcements were a direct backwash of the flow of "hot" money stemming from the dollar crisis. Foreign investors have been getting rid of their dollars to buy sterling in a massive gamble that If the British currency is revalued as part of an international package deal to realign all currencles against the lower value of the dollar, they would reap an enor-mous profit by selling their ser-ling at its then higher value.

To make the possibility of such transactions less attractive, the gove .. ment last weekend .. topped payment of interest to foreign holders of sterling. Now, by cutting back the interest rate they hope to stall further sterling speculative buying. Government spokesmen went out of their way today to stress that although a cut in bank rate would normally be designed to make borrowing cheaper for industrial expansion this time it was dictated by international events and was not specifically to boost the domestic economy.

The reduction is expected to increase demand in the money market for loan fonds as both money and hill rates will be lowered in line with the new bank rate, dealers said.

This probably will encourage potential borrowers to start projects which previously had been postponed due in the high interest

In Europe

By Selig S. Harrison

TOKYO, Sept. 2 (WP).-The eventually have to after its present prospects for an early "package" settlement of Japan-U.S. economic differences appeared to be fading here in the wake of tight new Japanese foreign exchange controls and continuing U.S. vagueness on the terms for removal of the 10 percent import surcharge.

Assistant Secretary of State Philip Trezise left today after three days of inconclusive spar-ring with officials. The Japanese reaffirmed their stand that the surcharge should be removed in exchange for a fixed upward revaluation of the yen, and Mr. Trezise stressed that the United States sees "no direct connection" between the two issues.

Faced with an elusive U.S. bargaining posture and uncertainty in the European money markets, authorities here have tightened up their foreign exchange controls during the past three days.

They are frankly seeking to above 7 percent pending the outcome of the Japan-U.S. economic conference in Washington next week and the Group of Ten ministerial meetings in London Sept.

Should the United States prove unwilling to remove the import surcharge in exchange for cur-rency reallgnments, the Bank of Japan would seek to make tha rate of revaluation here as minimal as possible, and the new controls are seen as a way to preserve Japanese bargaining leverage during the coming negotiations.

Another factor influencing the thinking of Japanese officials is that the United States might

As a result, he said, the division's stylists have worked up design drawings and a fu'll-sized model sculptured out of clay of a small-sized Cadillac to compete in this market "if and when the time comes to get in there." He emphasized that it was not

U.S. Eyes Prolonged Restraints

By Richard F. Janssen WASHINGTON, Sopt. 2 (AP-DJ),-U.S. officials planning for the period beyond the 90-day wageprice freeze fear that the economy has become so inflation-prone that some form of government restraints will be necessary for an extended

The period after the 90-day freeze, the so-called Phase 2, could result in an end to all government controls. But as aides study the causes of inflation more closely in an effort to find cures, they find it probable that some ktod of wage-price restraints will be in force at some time in the next ten years.

Even ten years may not see an end to intense intervention. "We aren't designing a program for permanent control" of the economy, insists one strategist, but the word "permanent" is his escape clause. For he adds: "I don't know how much shorter than infinity" the period of restraints will have to be.

Differing Lines of Reasoning

Underlying the administration's planning are three lines of reasoning: Blg companies and big unions have become so strong that they are not affected significantly by classic tax, spending and monetary policies oriented to a "free market" that no longer exists. • No such "structural" change has taken place:

it is just that the government has not tried hard enough to combat inflation by slowing the • There is probably some truth in both ideas. but the important fact is that no president will ever again risk a recession severe enough and unemployment high enough to quell inflation. This last argument appears to have found favor with more Nixon aides. "Presidents don't really get very theoretical about such things," says one

By Alan Truscott

When the diagramed deal was played in a recent U.S. tourna-ment, West at both tables opened with a weak two-heart bid, North made a take-out double and East's weak raise to three hearts was followed by a cue-bid of four hearts from South. Here the North players parted company.

One North bid four no-trump, which was just a general move toward slam, and South plunged directly into seven diamonds. This was easily made, for the play of the diamond are revealed the marked finesse against East's queen. One heart ruff in the dummy provided the 13th trick

There was considerable frony in the replay, where the bidding followed the course shown in the diagram. After North bid spades at his second turn, South natarally headed for a spade slam and bid seven after finding that his partner held two aces.

All would have been well if South had been the declarer, but as it was, West was able to make a Lightner double. This instructed East to make an unusual lead, and at the seven-level strongly suggested a void suit and an im-mediate ruff.

Recognizing that West must have a diamond void, South retreated to seven no-trump. He had no assurance of 13 tricks in no-trump, but that seemed better than submitting tamely to a ruff at the first trick.

East doubled seven no-trump for no particular reason, and it turned out that only 12 tricks could be made. The Gurwitz team gained 20 international match points. In the post-mortem, North-

South discovered that they would after all have made seven spades doubled. East would have had to likely to be void in his own longer suit. The Lightner double would then have helped North to make his slam. He would have ruffed one club in the South hand drawn trumps and taken a first-round dismond finesse, knowing that East must have all the missing

THE LAST WHOLE EARTH CATALO Access to Tools

Edited by Steward Brand. Portola Institute/Random 447 pp. Paper. $5.

Reviewed by Christopher Lehmann-Haupt How time goes by. Here it familiar headaches. 8 is, "The Last Whole Earth already, and people hadn't even got it straight yet what the first one was, or any of the 14 in between. Well, happily for them, among the smallest trinkets in this huge plum pudding of a publication is founder Stewart Brand's history of the venture. To wit: "The Whole Earth Catalog" got started in a plane over Nebraska in March, 1968. I was returning to California from my father's long dying and funeral that morning in Illinois. The sun had set ahead of the plane . . . I gased out the window into dark nothing and slid into a reverie about my friends who were starting their own civilization hither

So many of the problems I could identify came down to a matter of access. Where to buy a windmill. Where to get good information on beekeeping. Where to lay hands on a computer without forfeiting freedom . . ."

"Shortly I was fantasizing access service. A truck store, maybe, traveling around with information and samples of what was worth getting and information where to get it. A catalogue too, continuously updated, in part by the users. A catalogue of goods that owed nothing to the suppliers and everything to the users. It would be something I could put years into." So he did. With the blessings of his employer, Portola Institute (a small non-profit educationresearch corporation in Menlo Park, Calif.) and a stockpile of funds built for him by his parents, Brand stuck his toes in. He came up with a name (based on his "1966 Photograph-of-the-Whole-Earth Campaign"), began browsing in bookstores, joined the American Booksellers Association. By July he'd put together a mimeographed 6-page "Partial Preliminary Booklist" of which he'd gathered so far ("Tantra art, cybernetics, the Indian teepes, recreational equipment, about 120 items"), a truckload of samples, and about $200 worth of business from "familiar communes in New Mexico and Colorado." Two years later, he was in the eoing to do a million dollars worth of business (the majority of it on sales of the "Catalog" and its supplements, no advertising). The publicity word was spreading ("Nothing," Brand notes, "had the business impact of one tiny mention in Uncle Ben Sez in the Detroit Free Press, where some reader asked, 'How can we start a farm?' and Upcle Ben printed our address. of subscriptions from that.") And Braud had reached the point where he was asking in guest editors (notably Ken Kesey, the novelist, and Paul Krasner, editor of the Realist, who teamed up to produce last spring's supplement).

Rozelle Calls New NFL Team In New York 'Not Unrealistic'

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.-National Football League commissioner Pete Rozelle met with Mayor John V. Lindsay of New York City for 1 1/2 hours yesterdey and then said that it was "not unrealistic" to consider bringing another football team to the city to replace the New York Giants. who have signed a contract to play in a new stadium in New Jersey's Hackensack Meadowlands by 1975,

The commissioner said he would meet with the mayor again soon, but first wanted to study "the pros and cons."

During the discussion with the mayor, Rozelle was reminded that the city bad threetened antitrust action if it could not get another franchise. He said the league had a number of litigations pending and he was not intimidated by one more lawsuit. Rozelle said none of the NFL teams had spoken to him about transferring to New York. He said that under the league's constitution, no new franchise could be situated within 75 miles of another without the unanimous consent of all 26 teams.

The view from a sightseeing cruise boat: a rhesus monkey.

Tarzan's Monkeys Roam Florida 'Jungle'

By Martin Waldron

SILVER SPRINGS, Fla. 1NYT).—In the early 1930s, a Hollywood movie company making Tarzan movies along the Silver River imported rhesus monkeys from South-East Asia to give the central Florida jungle an "African" look.

In 1934-after having made several of the early Tarzan epics—the movie com-pany packed up and left. But three of the monkeys could not be caught. They swung around the trees in the deep jungle along the Silver and Oklawaha Rivers, eluding men with nets.

Descendants of the monkeys have adapt-ed themselves to live in central Florida and two packs of them are now seen roaming R 50-mile-long stretch of river forest from near Palatka to below Ocala.

Dr. William C. Maples, a University of Florida anthropologist who is an expert on baboons, said that a study of the rhesus monkey packs was yielding information: about how wild animals adapt themselves to new climates and new geography.

Graduate students are trying to find out what the monkeys eat and if there has been any change in family structure. No one knows exactly how many monkeys are reached the area where the monkeys live. The second pack of monkeys stays more or less in the vicinity of Silver Springs, a giant welling spring near Ocala that has long been one of Florida's major tourist

Ross Allen, a naturalist, who developed

Silver Springs and has since retired, said that the Silver River monkeys do not stray far because the captains of the "jungle cruise" boats feed them.

Mr. Allen doubled in some of the swimming and diving scenes for Johnny Weissmuller, the actor who played Tarzan in the films made along the Silver River. "Johnoy was too valuable to take a chance on being burt," Mr. Allen said.

Dr. Maples, the expert on baboons, said that the pack along the Oklawaha, which he estimates to oumber "certainly less than 100 and perhaps less than 50," eats grass shoots, buds, berries, ash tree leaves, insects and bird eggs.

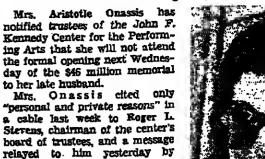

Some weeks ago, in an attempt to find out the exact range of the monkeys, Dr. Maples asked the University of Florida Information Service to issue a news release asking for reports from people who sighted the Okiawaha pack. Most of his reports had been coming from fishing camp opera-

An unexpected furor followed the issuance of the news release. Many people In the area became alarmed after the operator of a zoo was quoted as having said that rhesus monkeys are so powerful that a grown one could twist off a man's arm. There were some demands that the monkeys be caught or fenced in.

Dr. Maples said that, although the rhesus monkey is very strong—they grow to be about 3 feet tall and weigh 30 pounds they flee from human contact, and that there is absolutely no danger to humans from the Florida packs,

Mrs. Onassis to Miss IFK Center Opening

"She has not made an official appearance in Washington in seven years" since the assassination of President John F. Kennedy, Stevens said. "I just imagine she might not look forward to it," he added.

President Nixon sent word to Stevens last month that he would not attend the opening night performance of Leonard Bernstein's new work, a mass, in deference to Mrs. Onassis. He said the grand opening should be focused on members of the late President's family and he offered the presidential box to Mrs.

Stevens said that Mrs. Onassis had notified him in a letter early last month that she would attend the premiere. Last week, he said, he received a cable advising him that Mrs. Onassis had changed her mind. Yesterday, he said, Mrs. Onassis's social secretary in New York, Nancy Tuckerman, told him that President Kennedy's widow definitely would not be at the center's opening. Miss Tuckerman said she got the word from Mrs. Onassis in a call from the Onassis yacht, Christina.

Curtis began a Hollywood career as Olivia de Havilland's baby in "Gone With the Wind" and later starred as a teen-ager in a television series before going into publicity and management.
